

Year 7 students took part in a photography project in collaboration with The English National Opera and the London Coliseum. Students were asked to create photographs about themselves, exploring their Identity and character in the context of starting their secondary school journey. The wonderful work can be seen on BBC at 7pm on Saturday 14th November when a performance of Mozart's Requiem is broadcasted. Once the London Coliseum reopens properly, the portraits will be dispersed throughout the whole auditorium and will cover all seats being used for social distancing purposes and audiences will get to see them close up!
