

Teacher Shout-Outs

Ilhan - History - Ms Worrall - for an amazing recent Formative Assessment. It was a difficult question about the changes throughout England in the Civil War and you were able to answer the question directly and also provide amazing amounts of knowledge. It was obvious you did lots of revision and work. Great effort!

All of Miss Leach's PE classes - for outstanding efforts in fitness and circuit training lessons. Miss Leach has been blown away by everyone's hard work. Keep this up next term!

8GB - Art - Ms Tasneem - for an amazing art lesson. You all used your growth mind set and collaborative skills to ensure that everyone in the class created amazing sugar skills. Well done all!

5. How much had ^{the} England changed from Charles I becoming King to the end of the Battle of Naseby?

England had changed greatly from Charles I becoming King & the end of the battle of Naseby, because of the over-used amount of propaganda & censorship. This is shown through how the newspapers ~~are~~ were once used for everyday stories about politics or normal things that ~~was~~ informed to the public were informed of, but ~~at~~ during the war, many newspapers were taken control of and used to threaten the Royalists or Parliamentarians support from the public. The propaganda had changed England greatly once Charles I had began taking advantage of his power & taking control of the newspapers in order to boost the Royalists' image & attempt to bring down the strong Parliamentarians & puritans. This shows ~~that~~ ~~is~~ one of the ways ~~of~~ how England had changed ~~to~~ from Charles I becoming King & to the end of the Battle of Naseby, was because of the increased use of newspapers & overly used ~~at~~ amount of ~~the~~ propaganda & censorship going around during and after the war.

Teacher Shout-Outs

Jerelle - Science - Ms Nandakumar - for a real change in focus and behaviour. You asked some great questions, remained on task and ignored any distractions. You also showed great resilience by working after everyone had packed away to ensure you had finished. Ms is very impressed so keep it up!
